BRITISH ATTACK PLACES ALLIES IN POSSESSION OF IMPORTANT STRONGHOLDS

VICTORIES CONFIRMED

Heavy Fighting Continues at Close Range With Successes on Side of English

TROOPS REPRESENTED JOHNNY BULL'S BEST

Entered Conflict in High Spirits Following Barrage Fire to Protect Advance

Today found the British in Flanders holding all the valuable ground they gained in the attack of yesterday when they surged forward on an eight mile front on both sides of the Ypres-Menin road, penetrating the German lines for more than a mile in places, and capturing prisoners in excess of 2,000.

All the reports emphasize the completeness of the success the British troops achieved. They hold Veldhoek, Zevenkote and numerous strategically important farms and wooded tracts, which had been heavily fortified by the Germans, but which were captured in the British sweep.

Yesterday the Germans began to counter-attack, but every thrust was effectively dealt with by the British guns. The heavy casualties sustained in these fruitless attacks evidently impelled the German command to order a complete cessation of their operations during the night.

By Associated Press. British Headquarters in France, Sept. 20. (Delayed.)—The British offensive, which began at dawn over a wide front east of the Ypres salient, found the attacking forces late today holding many positions of vital importance and continuing the fight in German territory along a line in which many places represented an average gain of a mile in depth.

Strongholds Held. Such redoubtable strongholds as Nuns Wood, Glencorse Wood, Inverness Copse and Shrewsbury Forests, which have withstood numerous fierce assaults recently, were entirely overrun by the British, who reached positions well beyond them. Heavy fighting was continuing at close range at various points and the Germans were massing troops with the evident intention of delivering counter attacks.

It has been a day of great success for British arms, as the wooded heights they captured east of Ypres unquestionably are of crucial importance since these dominating positions form the keystone of the German structure of defense in this sector. The greatest gains have been made between St. Julien and Hollebeke, which was as had been planned, for within this stretch of country lies the important defenses just mentioned.

Some Fine Men.

The troops went into the attack represented some of the finest men in the British army. They entered the conflict in high spirits and were eager for the fray. The advance was preceded by one of the most perfect and heaviest barrages yet attempted. The men went over the top stripped light, and as a result of this, coupled with the fine artillery support, they were enabled to negotiate the first stages of the difficult road rapidly. They swept through Glencorse wood, Inverness, Copse and the eastern part of Shrewsbury forest by 8 o'clock, two hours and twenty minutes after the attack began, and other advance positions were reached with equal rapidity, which is a remarkable achievement, in view of the malarious nature of the ground, due to heavy rains.

Successes Confirmed.

London, Sept. 21.—Field Marshal Haig in later reports regarding the British offensive on the Belgian front to the east of Ypres yesterday, when the British troops pushed through the German lines for a distance of more than a mile, says that the completeness of the British success is confirmed by detailed accounts of the battle.

The British war office, after the receipt of Field Marshal Haig's report today, issued this bulletin: "More detailed accounts of yesterday's battle confirmed the completeness of our success. During the evening, local attacks delivered by us in the neighborhood of the tower Hamlet and northeast of Langemarck cleared up a number of strong points, and completed the capture of our objectives in these localities.

"It is now established that in the many counter attacks delivered by considerable forces of the enemy during the afternoon and evening, its casualties were unusually great.

Light Helped Troops. The clear light of the latter part of the day enabled our troops to observe the enemy's movements.

5-Year-Old Tot Crushed Under Auto

Little Girl, Preparing for Ride, Skips in Front of Heavy Car at Fargo

FATHER OF VICTIM IS GLASGOW HOTEL CHIEF

Fargo, Sept. 21.—Struck by a heavy Jackson automobile, driven by John Engen, Pearl Goodwin, 5 years old, was instantly crushed to death at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The accident occurred directly in front of the little victim's home, 314 Fourth avenue south, about half way between Ninth and Tenth streets.

The little girl ran from in front of another automobile, directly in the path of the car Engen was driving. She was struck by the radiator, knocked down and both front and hind wheel on the right hand side of Engen's car passed over her body. The body was pitifully mangled, the head being crushed, both legs broken and the trunk crushed.

SHERIFF AND POSSES AFTER I. W. W. BAND

Clay County Officer With Aid of Home Guard Determined to Clean Out Gang

WOBBLES TERRORIZING MINNESOTA COMMUNITY

Moorhead, Minn., Sept. 21.—Sheriff McDonald of Clay county, Chief of Police Melvey and Captain Hopeman of the Home Guard, with several automobile loads of home guards, left Moorhead this morning for Sabine, Minn., to clean out the I. W. W. elements there, following reports received here that members of the organization were so thick in Sabine that they were menacing the marketing of the potato crop.

The reports, received indicated that there were about 70 I. W. W. who were causing trouble, and that they were attempting to hinder the movement of the potato crop at Sabine, which is a large potato-center. The reports all indicated that their attitude was menacing.

The party which left Moorhead for the scene of the trouble announced they would go to Sabine, and "clean it out." Sabine is about 9 miles from Moorhead.

When the automobile party, which was composed of fourteen persons, including the sheriff, the chief of police, a preacher, and the postmaster, arrived in Sabine, they searched all the transients. Maurice Lewis, was the only one found with a gun on his person and he was arrested and taken to Moorhead, charged with carrying concealed weapons. The rest of the gang, 46 in number, were marched two miles down the road in the direction of Baker and Barnesville, and police officials of those two towns were notified to "keep them moving" until they were out of Clay county. The men offered no resistance.

PARENT AND DAUGHTER JAILED BY AUTHORITIES

Washburn, N. D., Sept. 22.—Anton Covlin and young daughter Julia are in jail here charged with the murder of Aloek Panasuk, a farmer neighbor in the Dogden community. Julia Covlin claims she fired the fatal shot when Panasuk had overcome her father and was threatening the life of her father after a quarrel over five stock. Other eye-witnesses, it is alleged, claim Covlin seized a shotgun from his daughter and fired the fatal shot. A juror's inquest returned a verdict that Panasuk came to his death through gunshot wounds from a gun in the hands of Anton Covlin or his daughter Julia. All of the parties are well known at Dogden.

"YELLOW" STIRS LA FOLLETTE AT LEAGUE POWWOW

Replies to Heckler That Term Applies to Man Who Shouts From a Crowd

BADGER SENATOR SPEARS TO DEFEND WAR COURSE

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21.—"Yellow" shouted from a crowd of several thousand people, which last night heard Senator Robert M. La Follette in an effort to justify his war course before the consumers' and producers' convention called by President Townley of the Nonpartisan league, stirred the ire of the badger senator, and he shouted back:

"A man who yells from a crowd where he conceals his own identity is himself yellow."

Minutemen and hisses greeted La Follette's reply. La Follette, billed to speak on "Representative Government," early deserted his subject for a tirade against the government's conduct of the war. League cheer-leaders, scattered through the auditorium, led spasmodic applause.

Demonstration. La Follette was accorded a stirring demonstration as he entered the hall. It continued after he mounted the platform and for five minutes after he had appeared at the railing ready to deliver his speech. The entire audience rose, waving flags and shouting. The audience was similarly enthusiastic in its reception to President Townley and Mayor Van Lear of Minneapolis, who appeared by selection of the Minneapolis labor unions as their representative.

Senator La Follette started to deliver a lecture upon "Representative Government." Before he had become fairly launched in his subject, however, he was interrupted by a heckler in the gallery, who challenged his course in the senate prior to the declaration of war. La Follette replied in his own defense. As other questions came from the gallery he threw down his typewritten manuscript and abandoned his set speech entirely to discuss war problems. Apparently many of the crowd present approved his course. After he had ended with a plea for raising at least half of the cost of the war by taxes, an ovation was given him, and it was necessary to form a flying wedge to get him out of the building to catch his train, so close was the throng that pressed around him to grasp his hand.

Senator La Follette opened his speech by declaring that the growth of the Nonpartisan league proved that government by political parties was no longer representative. He likened the growth of the league to the Granger movement, and denounced attempts to intimidate speakers by constant presence by unfriendly papers to the presence of secret service men. La Follette spoke of the beginning of his own political career in 1892, at Farmdale, Wis., and said he was making the same plea then as now, that corporations be forced to pay their just share of taxes.

League Is Necessary. "I do not need to speak for this organization of farmers," said Senator La Follette in the beginning of his speech. "It speaks for itself. It is a Nonpartisan league. Why? Why has such an organization been found necessary in this and other states? Because political parties have failed to give the people of this country real, representative government. What does it mean that men died in 1776 to give this government life? In order that it should be a real representative government. What is a representative

NORTH DAKOTA FARMERS NOT HOLDING GRAIN

Looking Farther Ahead Than Their Critics and Too Busy With 1918 Crop to Sell

FLOWING MUST BE DONE AND WHEAT HARVESTED

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 21.—North Dakota farmers are in the field preparing for the crop of 1918, and preparing a loss on the crop of 1917, according to North Dakota bankers who were in Minneapolis today and who said that reports of grain hoarding on farms were untrue.

F. A. Irish, vice president of the First National bank of Fargo, and C. R. Greene, vice president of the Farmers' & Merchants' bank of Cavalier, said the farmers of that state are looking farther ahead than their critics and that they cannot plow and move grain at the same time.

Plowing Must Be Done. "The fall plowing must be done, if the country is to have wheat next year," Mr. Irish said. "The farmers also have a big root crop that must be cared for and saved from the frost. There is no hoarding of grain. The grain will move as soon as the farmers can move it without injuring the next year's crop."

Germany and Austria have demanded military aid, which Bulgaria has refused. On the other hand, Bulgaria has asked similar aid which the central powers have refused.

RAUS MIT WARI! WORLD SERIES BEGINS OCT. 6

Armies in France to Receive Thousands Word Daily on Great Baseball Battles

CHICAGO GETS OPENER; NEW YORK'S FIRST 7TH

Admission Fees to Range From Fifty Cents to $5—Minors Are Going Up

Cincinnati, Sept. 21.—The National baseball commission today announced that the world's series would open on the grounds of the Chicago Americans, October 6, with the second game played there Sunday, October 7. On October 8 the New York Nationals and Chicago team will travel to New York where the third and fourth games will be played October 9 and 10. The fifth game, if five games are necessary, will be played at Chicago October 12. In case another game is required a two-day wait will take place, Saturday and Sunday being open, the sixth game to be played at New York October 15.

In the toss of the coin to decide the first game, Chicago was thrice lucky. The first toss fell on the floor, after President Harry Hempstead of New York had called "heads" and was declared "no toss." The same thing happened to the second toss, but in each instance the coin fell "tails." It was not until the third toss had stayed on the table that Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, was declared the winner.

The commission selected Umpire O'Loughlin and Evans of the American league, and Umpires Klem and Rigler of the National league to officiate.

Soldiers Remembered. Soldiers now in France and also those who are preparing to fight for liberty, were remembered by the commission. Announcement was made that a 1,000 word story would be mailed to France after each game for the benefit of soldiers there, while an exhibition game before the soldiers at either Rockford, Ill., or Minneapolis would be played after the series is over.

At the opening game in Chicago 1,500 seats will be reserved for prospective officers in training at Fort Sheridan. The committee also decided to give one per cent of the total of the commission's revenue of the games to the bat and ball fund of the soldiers in France.

President Wilson and Generals Barry, Carter, Bell and McCall will be invited to attend the series.

The admissions are as follows: At Chicago—Individual box seats, $5; grand stand reserved, $1.50; pavilion $1; bleachers, 50 cents.

At New York—Boxes (four seats to the box), $15; upper grand stand, $3; lower grand stand (open), $2; pavilion, $1.

Previous to deciding the world's series matter, the annual draft was held, at which the National league called 22 players from minor leagues and the American league 12. Cincinnati led all other clubs in getting players.

American Engineers On The Job

Day and Night Uncle Sam's Regiment of Eagle Eyes Is Hauling Ammunition

STICK TO BUSINESS UNDER BOMB ATTACK

American Training Camp in France, Sept. 21.—By day and by night the men of the American regiment of American engineers which has taken over an important line of French strategic railways, are hauling tons upon tons of ammunition and other supplies to the French army units operating against the Germans.

The American regiment has been turned over as a unit to the French, and is getting all its supplies, except clothing, from the French government. The officers and men entered upon the work with the greatest enthusiasm, and they have already been under German bombs and machine gun fire from aeroplanes.

Within the last few nights a heavy train of supplies hurrying toward the front was attacked by several enemy planes. None of the bombs came dangerously close, but every time the firebox of the engine was opened for stoking, the planes swooped down upon the train and scattered it with steel jacketed bullets. The fire got so hot that eventually the train was stopped, the crew taking refuge beneath the engine.

THURSDAY BIG DAY IN HISTORY OF SLOPE FAIR

More Than 5000 People Take in Best Exposition Ever Held in Mandan

GREAT SHOW WILL END WITH PROGRAM TODAY

Mandan, Sept. 21.—With 3,246 paid admissions, and an actual attendance, including school children, admitted free, of more than 5,000, Thursday proved the biggest and most successful day in the history of the Missouri Slope Agricultural association. The weather was ideal, the fine program went off without a hitch, and the thousands of merry-makers enjoyed every minute of the big show. The attendance from Bismarck was remarkably good. No. 3, which came over at noon, was crowded; on No. 7, early in the afternoon, there was barely standing room. A special train leaving last night at 8 o'clock carried the Capital City visitors homeward.

Cleaves Old Debt. Financially, association officers announced after a business session this morning, the big fair has been decidedly satisfactory, clearing enough money over all current expenses to pay off an old debt of approximately $2,000 and then leaving a fine little nest-egg for the 1918 fair.

A thousand Sioux Indians, many of them in native dress, camping on the grounds in aboriginal fashion, and the pup tents of 700 North Dakota guardsmen from Fort Lincoln have given the fair grounds the appearance of a military outpost of the old days, and the soldiers and Indians have proven one of the big attractions of the fair.

Three Devil Mills, the aviator who flew at Bismarck's Fourth of July celebration in 1916, made two fair flights yesterday, and the crowds were well pleased with his exhibition. He will make two more "bops" this afternoon with his military-tractor type biplane.

Sports Program. Gypsy Ilex copped the money in the trot or pace yesterday, finishing on a heavy track in 2:35 1/2. Indian Roy took the 3/4 mile running race, and Big Head finished second, time, 1:25. Lassie Two Bears led the two-mile relay in 4:55, and Ben Red Stone finished second in 5:03. Bear Shield, who tied Two Bears Wednesday, finished last, and Ben Two Horses took third place.

In the tug of war between soldiers and Indians, the guardsmen dragged the edkins all over the lot, easily winning the decision.

Junior High School Dismissed

The Junior High School of Bismarck was dismissed at noon today to enable them to attend the fair.

CONGRESS INVADIED

Ambassador Knew of Threatening Break With Fatherland as Soon as President

PACIFISTS USED ONLY AS CATPAW FOR ENEMY

Raked Chestnuts Out of Fire When Principals Dared Not Appear in Transactions

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Secretary Lansing today made public an astonishing addition to the series of disclosures of German intrigue in America and elsewhere—a message sent by Count von Bernstorff last January, to the Berlin foreign office requesting authority to pay out $500,000 to influence congress, through an unnamed organization, apparently known to the Berlin authorities.

Count von Bernstorff indicated in his message that money had been paid this organization on former occasions to perform the same work. The text of the message made public, without comment, follows:

"To pay out up to $500,000 in order as on former occasions, to influence congress through the organization you know of, which can, perhaps, prevent war."

"I am beginning in the meantime to act accordingly."

"In the above circumstances, a public official German declaration in favor of Ireland is highly desirable in order to gain the support of Irish influence here."

The text of the message was given out without comment in the same manner as were the messages of Count Loxburg, German minister to Argentina, which had disrupted relations between Argentina and Germany, and the letter of German minister, Von Eckhardt, Mexico City, recently made public.

May Be More Evidence. Whether the state department is in possession of other evidence indicating the ambassador's activities, has not been revealed, but the extraordinary disclosures already made have fixed the belief that agents of the United States government have collected and compiled the entire story of German duplicity and intrigue and that additional chapters will be added.

The reference to avoiding war is taken as an indication that Ambassador von Bernstorff had prior knowledge of his government's intention to proclaim a merciless, widespread submarine warfare, and that he was equally confident that the United States government could not be easily placated by mere promises.

The German announcement is intended to expand its submarine activities to the public until Jan. 1, when the world was startled not only by the determination to remove all restrictions but by the statement that it would become effective on the following day. Three days later the United States government expressed its disapproval by severing relations with Germany.

Knew Government Intent. That the German ambassador knew of his government's intention was expressed by some officials, although at the same time he denied prior knowledge and those in close touch with the embassy were given to understand that he did not approve the course, and worked to secure modification.

It has not been assumed that the ambassador actually attempted to bribe or personally to influence any member of congress, and doubts that such was his purpose is supported, to some extent by the comparatively small amount of money he asked. Fifty thousand dollars, it was pointed out, would go but a short way toward buying the influence of any congressman. Judiciously expended, however, it might do much in compensating paid agents such as are now known to have belonged to the elaborate unit on Bernstorff had so carefully set up for propaganda, and for purposes of espionage.

German Machine Here. Information in the possession of the government, but not yet revealed, is said to show conclusively a more direct connection of the German machine in America on the Irish question than that indicated in the Count von Bernstorff message. The revelations in this country are said to contain the names of several well known in America.

Today's announcement by the state department is the first of a series of disclosures of German duplicity and intrigue which the government has been making since the beginning of the war. The evidence of Count von Bernstorff's personal activities in connection with German propaganda here lends the

WE HAVE NO PALACES TO HOUSE OUR GUESTS; SO THEY FIND REST IN MILLIONAIRES' MANSIONS

By MILTON BRONNER.

Washington, Sept. 21.—When a distinguished mission is expected in a European capital, especially where the countries are or were monarchies, the question of housing them is simple.

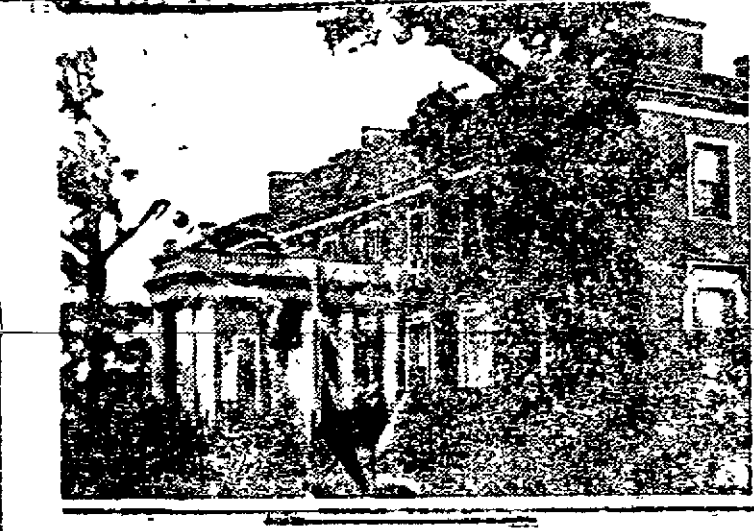

Some executive in the department of foreign affairs presses a button, summons a functionary, yawns wearily and says: "Which palaces are unoccupied?"

He gets the list, picks one and says: "Prepare this one for use by the mission next week."

And the thing is settled—no worry, no hurry—a nice old palace, with traditions and spoils and secret chambers, all ready for occupancy.

But it's different here. We do not own palaces. We give our president a nice white colonial house in a modest park, compared to what our millionaires own. And we say to our vice president and cabinet officers: "Go and get yourselves. We pay you $12,000 a year. Find your own home and furnish it."

So, when we went into this war and a flood of missions came to our shores, the problem of how to house them was a serious one. But it was solved, thanks to the fact that Washington in the past few years has become a favorite dwelling place of the rich. Their stone palaces are scattered all over the burg. And many palace owners volunteered to turn them over—house, pantry, wine cellar, servants and all for Uncle Sam's guests. Marshal Joffre and party were housed in the residence of Henry White. It was natural they should be, as White had once been ambassador to France. Balfour and his fellow Englishmen were lodged in the home of Breckenridge Long, third assistant secretary of state. The Prince of Ulline and the rest of the Italian mission enjoyed the hospitality of Joseph Leiter, and the Russians that of Penner Jennings. The Belgian mission went to the home of Larz Anderson, formerly American minister to Belgium. The Japanese mission, under Viscount Ishii, is comfortably housed in the mansion of Perry Belmont.

formerly located in Mandan, but who is now in St. Paul, arrived in the city this morning and is spending a few days in Mandan, looking after real estate business. Mr. Farin has considerable land in the Fort Clark and Belvidere vicinities, which he will inspect before returning to St. Paul the fore part of next week.

Friends Become Nervous and Retire From Bond of Alleged Blind-Pigger

W. T. Johnson, who was arrested and bound over to district court to answer to the complaint of blind-pigging, several months ago, is in the county jail. Johnson was arraigned before Judge Henke at the time of his arrest and bound over to district court, Judge Henke fixing his bond at $500. He secured Messrs. Hyde, Young, Knutson and two other Almont business men as bondsmen. When Johnson departed unexpectedly for Fargo this week, his bondsmen became alarmed, and insisted upon withdrawing from his bond. Marshal Bird was notified, and he went to the Gate City and returned with his prisoner.

FIRST FEMALE PIGGER IS ARRESTED IN FARGO

Woman Charged With Bringing Liquor From Moorhead Across State Line

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Regina Idekops of Front street, is the first woman to be arrested in North Dakota for violation of the act of March 2, 1917, shipping liquor into prohibition territory.

Police made the arrest and turned the woman over to the federal authorities Thursday afternoon. When taken into custody she was walking across the foot bridge with several bottles of whiskey in her possession, it is alleged.

Federal authorities say that the defendant made a trip to Minneapolis, and bought her ticket from there to Moorhead, getting off at the latter city and then stealing over to the North Dakota side.

CONSTIPATION INVITES DISEASE

A reliable laxative is necessary to the comfort and health of any well-ordered household, because constipation is a condition that, in greater or less degree, practically every member of the family. When the bowels refuse to act, the entire system is affected; digestion is impaired, nerves begin to twitch, food gases and poisons generated by decomposing substances in the intestines are distributed throughout the body and often result in serious illness. A prominent French scientist says ninety-five percent of all human disease is directly traceable to inactive bowels. More than a quarter of a century ago Dr. W. B. Caldwell prescribed a combination of simple laxative herbs with poisons that is now the standard remedy in thousands of homes. This prescription is sold by druggists for fifty cents a bottle, under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A trial bottle can be obtained, free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 185 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

"WE'LL DIG FOR YOU," SAYS CREW; THEY DO, A FEW

Gang Independent Workmen Succeeded Soak Bed Clothes in Lye and Make 'Em Scratch

Wolford, N. D., Sept. 21.—We'll dig for you," promised an independent crew whom John Hart hired here after his I. W. W. gang had struck. And they did. They began digging the moment they sandwiched themselves between the blankets and quilts which Mr. Hart had purchased new for his last crew, and they dug and scratched and cursed all through the long night. The next morning they told Hart something was wrong with his blooming blankets. Hart investigated, and discovered that the I. W. W. before quitting the premises had saturated all the bed covering in the bunk house with condensed lye. Wherever it struck a bit of bare skin it burned. This particular bunch of I. W. W. was an enterprising lot. New blankets and quilts constituted their first demand after getting on the job. Hart complied with their wishes. The following day they presented a menu, including many almost unobtainable dainties, which they declared must be served them. When Hart informed them it couldn't be done they quit, and they did their best to make the nights hideous for their successors.

tain warning of impending attacks, and in every case the advancing lines of German infantry were destroyed by the concentrated fire from our rifles, machine guns and artillery. "The obstinacy with which the enemy constantly repeated the attack only added to his losses without recovering for him any of the valuable ground which we had won. No Counter Attacks. "Exhausted by his previous efforts, the enemy made no counter attacks during the night, and our troops were able to consolidate the positions undisturbed. "Our own losses in the battle are light. In the course of the night small hostile attacks were driven off west of Havincourt and west of Lens."

"YELLOW" STIRS LA FOLLETTE AT LEAGUE

government? It is one that represents the people. Some have forgotten these struggles. Some are testifying a devotion to representative government that they do not feel. Who is now crying the loudest for democracy? It is business. These new converts to democracy are masking themselves in the livery of democracy while serving the devil. "The plan of this government was that there should be senators for each state and one representative for each unit agreed upon. It was never planned that they should represent only themselves nor that they should represent the United States Steel corporation. One or two minor interruptions came as La Follette mentioned the existence of war and his own opposition to its declaration on the ground that the main grievance of this country was that, "Germany had interfered with the rights of our citizens to sail the high seas—on ships loaded with munitions for Great Britain." Man Cries "Yellow." La Follette at this point was departing from his prepared speech which he was scheduled to deliver. A man in the gallery called out "Yellow." "A man who yells that from a crowd, where he conceals his own identity is himself yellow," La Follette replied. Cheers came from the crowd and a few hisses. The crowd in the gallery from which the voice had come started to yell, "Throw him out." The audience in the main floor of the auditorium rose. For a moment panic threatened, but Governor Frazier, A. C. Townley and others rushed forward and with La Follette's help order was restored. From this point on La Follette made no attempt to follow his speech, and launched into a defense of his own attitude. There were only minor interruptions. The speaker went from this to a plea for a pay-as-we-go policy in financing the war. "Wars have always been financed after a struggle by wealth on the one hand, for the taxation method, and the people on the other, for the pay-as-we-go method," he said, "and wealth has generally triumphed. I pray God that after this comparison league sets under way, this won't be the case."

Pioneer Army Officer Recalls Capital City As It Was in Seventies

Leaving Bismarck a raw frontier outpost of a few hundred souls and returning to find it a metropolitan town—fast, noisy city ward, Col. Mervin Maus, medical corps, U. S. A., stopped off en route to California today to renew friendships begun 40 years ago. Colonel Maus has been detailed to the headquarters at San Francisco, where he will serve as chief surgeon of the western department, and he will spend in Bismarck and Mandan a few days of the short furlough which has been granted him. The colonel as a young commissioned officer of the medical corps, was assigned to old Fort Lincoln, below Mandan, on the west side of the river, in 1877, one year following the Custer massacre. Bismarck was then a village of 300 people. West of the river there was hardly a human habitation until Miles City was reached. The Mandans, Arickaras and Gros Ventres had a village where Mandan now stands. There was fine deer running at the mouth of the Heart.

Friends of those days whom Col. Maus lovingly recalls were Captain Raymond, the banker; George F. Flannery, now president of the Northwestern Trust company at St. Paul; Dr. Porter, Ebenezer Ely, Alexander McKenzie and others prominent among the pioneers of the seventies, some still living and taking an active part in the development of the northwest, others long since dead.

"I feel in a way that Bismarck is one of my children," said Colonel Maus. "I have known the town when there were only 300 people in it. I have watched it and owned property here for 40 years, and I cannot but feel that it has a great future before it, that the time is not far distant when Bismarck and Mandan will be among the large centers of the northwest. I believe they are both cities of destiny, and that working hand in hand they will both grow and prosper wonderfully in the decades to come."

"When I struck the Red River valley there wasn't a house except the operator's shack in Jamestown. There was practically nothing west of the Missouri river to Helena. The old Black Hills stage was running between Bismarck and the gold fields."

Business Revolution

We are never ready for a revolution. It upsets us. It destroys our placid indifference. It hurts our pride. Yes it really hurts. But the fact that we do not like it—that it hurts—does not stop it. Things get unendurable then they break—they change. Old methods in the commercial world are going to the discard the same as old methods—autocracy—in the political world and governments.

Commercial Democracy

Who to the commercial autocrat that now blocks the way. Co-operation, democracy in trade, must and will win. The people must own and control their utilities and stores, in the way of stock companies, in which all are interested, or autocracy on one hand, or socialism on the other, is the only solution.

We prefer every man owning his share of business and are preparing for it. We want commercial democracy.

SEND BULGARIAN LEGATION HOME.

The allied diplomats are too polite to express an open opinion about our diplomatic pitching, they are deeply puzzled as to why we continue relations of amity with Bulgaria and allow the Bulgarian minister full swing.

Sooner or later they feel the United States will realize the necessity of breaking off relations with Bulgaria. They think it ought to be sooner rather than later.

It is all very well to say Bulgaria has given us no cause for belief. That may hold true in theory, not in practice. The Bulgars have over 350,000 well trained troops in this war. They hold Serbia. They face Russians and Rumanians in Rumania. With Germans, Austrians and Turks they face the allies at Monastir.

Every Bulgarian regiment engaged in war work thereby automatically relieves a German or an Austrian regiment for work elsewhere.

Germans soon will be killing American soldiers because they will be spared for this work by the job Bulgarian troops are doing elsewhere. So whether we want to call it so or not, Bulgarian troops will be fighting ours indirectly.

But there is still another phase. Each belligerent is anxious for information concerning preparations and plans of the others. Germany wants to know how we are getting along with our selective service armies, with our naval plans for destroyers and submarine chasers, with our aviation program, with our manufacture of big and little guns, rifles and ammunition.

The most likely agency for the transmission of this kind of news is the Bulgarian legation.

The Bulgarians can pick up in the capital much news that would be worth a great deal to the Prussian war masters.

It is high time we realize that we are really at war and that one of the essentials of war-making is to close all news avenues to the enemy. There is always danger that we may wake up too late. We almost had such an awakening when German submarines lay in wait for the transports bearing Pershing's army to France. The next time the enemy may be more successful.

The Bulgarians are the enthusiastic allies of the Germans. Whenever a Bulgarian can get information that will be of value to Germany, he will be doing something of value to Bulgaria.

But the United States should not be one of the places where he can get such information. And the way to prevent it is to give the Bulgarian legation its walking papers.

There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip.

While the Korniloff revolt was at its height Kerensky married. Well, troubles never come singly.

P. S. (A woman's viewpoint.) Red Cross women in Chicago are soliciting old kid and leather gloves and old boot tops to be used for making leather caps for aviators. Once more feminine ingenuity goes "over the top."

HOW NEUTRALS REACT.

Uncle Sam is fighting to make the world safe for democracy, and the result is, wherever democracy is allowed to make itself heard, it is working hard for America and her allies.

This is especially so in neutral Europe, and is constantly reflected in their newspapers. In Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Spain and Switzerland the wage earners' parties are usually pro-ally. The army officers, the aristocratic classes, big business, and the established church are strong for Germany.

This is especially so in neutral Sweden. The army officers of both countries had German training and admire German methods. The aristocracy of both countries look to Germany as the last defender of royalty. The clergymen of the state Lutheran church in Sweden and of the state Catholic church in Spain are both pro-German.

Spain the Germans have been successful also because they have subverted many of the leading newspapers. Not long ago the king of Spain was quoted as wittily saying: "In Spain no one is for the allies save myself and the plain people." The big metropolitan papers are mainly pro-German. Thus "A. B. C." had an interview with Bernhardt telling of Germany's unimpaired military strength and Espana Nueva discoursed upon England's inability to cope with the submarines.

Corree Espanol speaks of the bad bread in France and emphasizes alleged strikes in England, news of which it receives from German wireless service. Debate shows anxiety over the proposed economic alliance against Germany and the Nation declares union with Germany is Spain's only course after the war. Occasionally some leader like Count Romanones takes the opposite view.

In Sweden the big papers like Aftonbladet and Nya Dagligt Allehanda are pro-German. Papers like Social Demokraten, which appeal to the working class, are more or less pro-ally.

In Norway the overwhelming sentiment of the newspapers is for the allies, reflecting the feeling of the people. There is little active pro-German propaganda in Norway. Morgenbladet, one of the leading papers, says "It is not mere play when Uncle Sam shakes his mailed fist."

Switzerland is a hot-bed of German propaganda. Two and a half times as many Swiss speak German as French and Italian and some of the big papers are recognized as organs of the German government. This is especially important to Germany, as Switzerland is a sort of hotel lobby where all the representatives of the belligerent nations cross each other's path.

Holland is under the German tiger's paw. As a result, the papers there are less outspoken, arways with the exception of the Telegraaf, which fearlessly attacks Germany, and which printed the famous cartoons of Louis Raemaekers, which resulted in a Dutch court proceeding against the artist at the instigation of the German legation. Raemaekers was not convicted. In the main, however, the papers try to preserve a neutral attitude, blaming both sides. They scold England for extending the mine fields in North sea waters and complain loud and long because Germany sinks Dutch merchant vessels.

Poor little Denmark is also always obsessed by fear of Germany. Social Demokraten, the working class paper, is strong for the Stockholm peace conference and for peace by agreement. It spends much time scolding the United States and England for opposing this kind of peace.

Old saying repeated: There's a German in the woodpile.

There was a race riot at Illinois state reformatory. Facing for the door, probably.

If the Swedes don't look out they'll have the rest of the world calling them Scandinavians.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS. By Allman

"CONTRABAND"

A Romance of the North Atlantic by RANDALL FARRISH
Author of "My Lady of the North," "aid of the Forest," etc. (Copyright A. C. McClurg & Co.)

CHAPTER I.—Robert Hollis, one time sea captain, who tells the story, is a guest on Gerald Carrington's yacht, Emerald. He is supposed to be a "stag" party and Hollis is surprised on discovering a woman, who evidently wishes to remain unknown aboard.

CHAPTER II.—Hollis, the next night, succeeds in having an interview with the woman.

CHAPTER III.—Carrington, his guests of the coming war, and that he is engineering a copper poe.

CHAPTER IV.—The yacht is sunk in a collision and Hollis saves McCann, millionaire, and one of the party.

CHAPTER V.—Hollis and McCann rescue Vera and leave the ship in a small boat.

CHAPTER VI.—Hollis and Vera become friendly, though he is unaware of her identity.

CHAPTER VII.—McCann refuses to submit to Hollis' authority, and the "stag" enforces it.

CHAPTER VIII.—The castaways are rescued by a ship, the Indian Chief, which takes them aboard.

CHAPTER IX.—The Indian Chief has recently been struck by lightning and is almost a wreck. All the officers are dead. Hollis meets the owner, who tells him the vessel has a cargo of ammunition, consigned to the German government.

CHAPTER X.—Hollis consents to take charge of ship and continue voyage. Vera recognizes an old friend in Robert Bascom, owner of the Indian Chief.

CHAPTER XI.—Some dissatisfaction among the crew quickly develops, and Hollis selects his officers.

CHAPTER XII.—McCann wants to return to New York, and tries to corrupt the crew.

CHAPTER XIII.—Hollis finds himself forced to confine McCann to a cabin.

CHAPTER XIV.—Vera and Hollis agree that for Bascom's sake the ship must be taken to its destination. Hollis learns that Vera is Gerald Carrington's daughter.

CHAPTER XV.—The crew, realizing danger of capture by allied warships, evince disinclination to continue the voyage.

CHAPTER XVI.—Leaders of the crew disarm Hollis and make him a prisoner.

CHAPTER XVII.—In a fight with the mutinous Hollis is badly hurt. On recovering consciousness he realizes that he must submit, though, being the only navigator on board, he is in position to make terms with McCann. He is made a prisoner.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Vera pretends to agree to McCann's plans, to Hollis' wonder.

CHAPTER XIX.—Hollis escapes from confinement and reaches the deck to find the Indian Chief has been stopped by a French warship.

CHAPTER XX.—McCann succeeds in deceiving commander of warship which passes on its way. Hollis is recaptured.

CHAPTER XXI.—Vera and Hollis reach understanding by which they will outwit McCann.

CHAPTER XXII.—Vera acknowledges her love for Hollis. McCann, "Liverpool Red" and the leaders of the mutiny have a conference.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Hollis realizes that McCann and his followers are preparing to abandon the ship.

CHAPTER XXIV.—Vera releases Hollis and he frees the men loyal to Three six men died before they could wink an eye.

"But the fellow who did it? What has become of him?"
Masters shook his head.
"I don't know, sir; but there must have been some there, ain't none of these dead men could have turned the trick."
"Perhaps it was that cuss dangling over the side, captain," said White's voice, from back behind the others.
"What is that?"
"There's a fellow got jammed in a small boat alongside, sir. I just happened to look over, and saw him a-hangin' there."

I was glad enough to escape that cabin of horror, and I slid the companion door to, and bolted it, before following White across the deck to the starboard rail. Excited as I was, obsessed by this awful tragedy, my mind yet grasped every detail—the shining brasswork, the spotless decks, the white boats in their davits, the snowy canvas aloft. The very immaculateness of the vessel seemed to add to the horror, and it was a shock to even read the schooner's name, painted on a lifebuoy—Rose of Gaspé.
A glance below revealed the whole story of the accident. It was clear enough to be read instantly by a sailor's eyes. The man in his efforts to escape had chosen one of the smaller boats, but one staunch and well equipped. No doubt it had been secretly prepared in advance, for the lockers contained food, and a beaker of fresh water was securely lashed to a stout thwart. There was also a spar and sail aboard, safely secured, together with a pair of serviceable oars.
What had happened, as seemed clear to us, was this: a heavy brass-bound chest, of odd workmanship and dingy appearance, had been stowed away in the bows. It must have been placed here with rope and pulley, for no single pair of arms could ever have lifted it over the rail. Then the fellow clambered in, eager to be off, no doubt, and undertaken to lower the boat, standing probably amidsthips, where he could manipulate both ropes. But the forward rope must have jammed in the pulley, permitting the stern of the suspended boat to sag suddenly enough to send the heavy chest sliding aft. Before he could check the fall, or save himself by leaping overboard, it had pinned his legs against the stern anchor, and there he landed still, his face buried in the green water alongside, his knees rushed helplessly beneath the weight of the chest—an inert dead body.

"The fellow got his air," said Leopard solemnly. "Likely enough killed by the very thing he was trying to get away with. What shall we do with the boat and what's in it, sir?"
"Untangle that pulley slowly, and hoist up even with the rail," I answered. "We'll have a look at the man, and find out what's in the chest; it's an odd-looking affair."

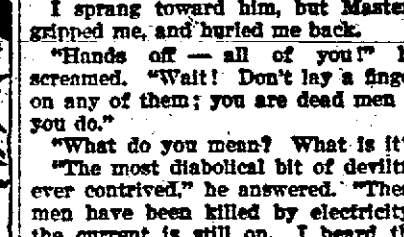

I helped balance it, and with White using his uninjured arm, we drew the dead man's body in over the rail. The two mates released his limbs from the grip of the chest, and we laid him out on the deck. He was an ill-looking fellow, deeply tanned, with a livid scar across one cheek, and an anchor tattooed on his forearm. Leopard drew a wad out of the inner pocket of his shirt, and passed it over to me. It was a letter with no dateline or signature, and had been so soaked in salt water as to be almost illegible. The only connecting words I could study out were: "De Lys has all his men but a cook; try to get on! He'll never know you after these years."

"Does it tell you anything, sir?" asked Olson anxiously.
"Not much; only this fellow called as cook, and got the job for a purpose. He had known De Lys years before."
"De Lys?"
"Yes; that was the name of the big fellow in the cabin; he must have been at the head of the party; the one Liverpool knew as Gaston de Lys. Get that chest onto the deck; no doubt the secret is there."

bar eyes searching mine.
"What can have happened?"
"I do not in the least know," I answered. "The mystery is too deep to guess at. There has been no storm, no fire, no evidence of desertion, every boat seems to be in its proper place. The only thing I can think of as possible is drink. The whole crew may be drunk, but that seems like a dream. However, we can't stand here doing nothing. White, you are not of much use with that broken arm, so remain alongside Miss Carrington. Keep your eyes open. Leayord, you and I will have a peep into that cabin; the rest of you take the forecastle. Be careful, lads, but don't miss anything—scatter now."

I slid back the companion door, and entered slightly in advance. The cabin floor was on a level with the main deck, and its glass front flooded the interior with light. A glance revealed everything, and I stood motionless, my breath caught in my throat, my hand still gripping the edge of the door. I was aware that Leayord peered in across my shoulder, and heard his startled lips utter one muffled exclamation. It was a low-celled apartment, painted white, with ports along the sides, the only state-rooms being aft. A bright-hued rug covered the floor, and there were leather divans under the ports. The table in the center was fully set for a meal, covered with a white cloth, and glistening bravely with china and glass. There was food in abundance, partially eaten, and wineglasses half filled. I saw all these details; I recalled them afterwards, yet in that first instant of horror, the impression left upon me was merely of those silent, motionless figures sitting upright in their chairs. It was a gruesome sight! A great monster of a man faced me, his white, ghastly face appearing above a shaggy gray beard, his sightless, open eyes, staring full into mine. A wineglass had fallen from his opened fingers, and lay broken on the deck. Indeed, everyone had apparently died as by a stroke, retaining exactly the posture last assumed in life.

To the right of the broad-shouldered giant was a thin, young fellow, scarcely out of his teens, but with a dark, repulsive face, and at his left a dark-faced man almost a negro, grinned horribly, as though death had stricken him even as he laughed. Nothing could be more awful to look upon than the gleam of his teeth, beneath the fantastic curl of his mustache. There were six altogether, five sitting upright in swivel chairs, screwed to the deck, or leaning forward with heads resting on the table. The sixth, gray-haired and partially bald, had fallen sideways, and lay in a shapeless heap on the rug. They had the look of sea-sick men, who were roughly dressed, three of them plainly foreigners, one with rings in his ears. The big man alone possessed the appearance of leadership.

I saw all this in that one swift glance. Breath had not come sobbing back to me, when Leayord's hand crushed my arm and his voice rumbled in my ear:
"See, captain! they're dead; they're all dead!"
"Yes," I answered, choking over the words, "there is no doubt of that. Something terrible has occurred here. Call—call the other men."

I heard him stumble out through the companion door, and the roar of his voice as he shouted to those forward; I could distinguish the sound of their feet on the deck, but could not remove my gaze from that awful sight in the cabin. The eyes of that giant dead man, staring at me so fixedly across the table, held me as in a vise—there was something so ghastly, so terrible, about their expression, as to rob me of all sense, all courage. The men joined me, Liverpool entering in advance, and pushing past where I stood. I have no recollection of seeing the others, although I felt and heard their presence. But I saw him—marked his sudden stop, the quick bleaching of his face, and the sharp oath which burst from his lips, the swift, incredulous look of surprise, of recognition, which leaped into his eyes. He was staring straight into the ghastly face of the giant opposite. I doubt if he even saw any of the others.

"Heart of the devil!" he shouted. "If it isn't Gaston de Lys! So you've got it at last, you old hound!"
He leaped forward, circled the table with a single stride, hate, memory, whatever the impulse might be, conquering all fear, and gripped his hand hard on the dead man's shoulder. And then he stiffened, every muscle of his body stricken; I could see death strike him, his jaw set, his eyes fixed—an instant he stood rigid; then his whole form seemed to contract and he fell lifeless to the deck.

I sprang toward him, but Masters gripped me, and hurried me back.
"Hands off—all of you!" he screamed. "Wait! Don't lay a finger on any of them; you are dead men if you do."
"What do you mean? What is it?"
"The most diabolical bit of devilry ever contrived," he answered. "These men have been killed by electricity; the current is still on. I heard the whirr of the dynamo as I came aft. Don't move until I find the switch and disconnect; for God's sake stand where you are."

Perhaps he was gone five minutes; I could never tell; I saw nothing but those dead men; heard nothing but the heavy breathing of my mates in the doorway. No one spoke; but once, it seemed to me, I caught the throb of that deadly dynamo, yet even as I seemed to distinguish the faint sound, it ceased abruptly. Masters pushed in past me.
"Ay, that was the truth," he said, "but it's safe enough now. Lord; did you ever hear of such a d—, cold-blooded crime. See here, men, the villain planned his job well—here are the wires along the deck, pressed into a seam, and connected to each swivel chair. See, the circuit is complete, and no one would ever suspect. All he had to do was stand back there in the stowaway's pantry and press the switch."

Stage Set for Big Farewell for Soldier Boys at Armory and Temple

The stage is all set for the big farewell for the boys of Companies A and I and Headquarters company which the Woman's Auxiliary to Company A will give this evening in the Masonic temple and the Armory. The orders received today from national headquarters to prepare to entertain the week of September 24, has quickened the pulses of the Capital City people and added enthusiasm has been given to the last social entertainment that will be given for the boys before their departure.

It will be one of the most enthusiastic and brilliant affairs yet given for the boys. They will be received by the high officers and their staff and ladies and the auxiliary is being assisted by a number of women of the city. Dancing will be the feature at both the armory and the temple, the music to be furnished by the Second regiment band and O'Connor's orchestra. Bismarckers are expected to turn out by the hundreds to bid farewell to the boys.

Seventeen Answer Country's Call And Enter Hospital for Training

Seventeen young women have answered the country's call and have entered the Bismarck hospital training school for nurses. Since the outbreak of the war the council of national defense, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., has started a propaganda to recruit as many young women of the country as possible to take up the study of nursing. Letters have been sent out to high school and college graduates urging them to enter training schools, and letters have been sent to the superintendents of the training schools urging them to make more room for large classes. The great appeal for nurses in Europe and in this country for Red Cross work is finding its way to the younger women of the country, and large classes are coming into training schools all over the country.

Miss Louise Hoernan, R. N., superintendent of the Bismarck hospital school, has complied with the government's wishes and is doing all in her power to make room for as many as desire to enter the profession. The handsome, new nurses home will accommodate even a larger class, and it is expected that many more young women of the state will respond. Already the Red Cross has called one

FAIL BRIDE TO BE FETTERED THIS EVENING

A novel social affair will be given this evening by Mrs. Ernest Wright of Fifth street, in honor of Miss Helen Hoskins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hoskins, whose marriage to Glover H. Dollar will be an event of this fall. A large camp fire will be built and the guests will gather around it and enjoy a marshmallow roast. Three of the guests, dressed as Indian maidens will present the honor guest with gifts. Mrs. Wright will be assisted by her sister, Miss Luel Barnes and Miss Hoskins' sister, Mrs. P. J. Meyer.

During the week-end Mrs. R. M. Bergeson entertained at a prettily appointed shower for Miss Hoskins. Twenty-five of her girl friends were guests and the evening was spent in social diversions. During the evening Master Lillie Bergeson the four-year old son of the hostess, dressed in evening clothes, presented the gifts to the bride-elect. Mrs. Bergeson was assisted by her mother, Mrs. William Simpson of Mandan and mother-in-law, Mrs. S. E. Bergeson.

HENRIETTA GROSMAN IS WAR ENTHUSIAST

Henrietta Grosman the noted American actress who plays at the Auditorium Saturday evening, in "Erstwhile Susan," is a true daughter of Uncle Sam. In a recent interview she is quoted as saying when she heard stories of barbaric conditions existing in parts of the United States, "Honey, I think it would be a good thing if a German bomb could be dropped into some of the cities of the United States providing, of course, no one was hurt." Adding, she said, "If I were a man you could not keep me away." Her life has always been closely associated with things military, both her father and grandfather having been army officers. She also told of the splendid estab-

Kitchell Allensworth are arranging to remove to the farm of the former's father near Britton. Charles Allensworth, a brother, has been drafted and will leave with the next contingent. BRUSHES ASIDE TYRANNY AND OVERCOMES ENMITY.

Henrietta Grosman, who is assured of a warm welcome in Philadelphia, comes to the Auditorium tomorrow evening in a new and unique comedy by Marian de Forest, entitled "Erstwhile Susan." In this play Miss Grosman returns to a field in which she excels, that of light, sparkling comedy.

Miss deForest founded her comedy upon Helen Martin's novel of life among the Pennsylvania Dutch, entitled "Barnabette." She has brought to the stage the full flavor and quaintness of that amusing book, and in addition she has made the story dramatically effective. The plot concerns the whimsical adventures of Juliet Miller (Erstwhile Susan) in the little, narrow-minded and self-sufficient town of Reinartz Station, Pa.

Barnaby, a merry, light hearted and surly, advises for a wife, and in answer to his prayer comes Susan Miller. Wonderful and curious are her clothes, for she believes in preserving her "individuality," while her speech, high-flown, is new and awesome to Barnaby's thrifty Dutch neighbors. Dreary, twice a widower, and the father of three grown children, is enamored before he knows it. Once Barnaby's wife, Susan sets her curious personality to work to better the conditions in the household. How she brushes aside the tyranny of Barnaby, who believes with his brethren that women were given to his household to labor for the men; how she brings a sweetheart and happiness to little Barnabette, Barnaby's daughter, whom she loves as she would a daughter of her own; and how she overcomes the enmity and

STATE CLOSES YEAR WITH BIG SUM TO GOOD

North Dakota and Bankruptcy June 30, 1917

HIGHWAY FUND BEGINS TO LOOM UP ON LEDGER

The total receipts of the state of North Dakota for the year ending June 30, 1917, were $6,196,511.59. The state had on hand at the beginning of the year $1,758,162.51, and there remained at the close of the year $1,485,820.95, the expenditures for the year, $6,468,573.15, being somewhat in excess of receipts.

The state's only bad accounts are two small amounts due from suspended banks. The late Larton state bank owes the state $1,244, and there is $3,652.61 still due from the First National bank of Rugby. In the teachers' retirement fund at close of the year there was $70,000 while there was due from state depositaries $1,409,320.55.

The balance in the state mail insurance fund at the end of the year was $61.95 as against a balance of $265.74 at the beginning of the year. $23,959.92 was collected and $31,701.71 expended for mail insurance. General fund collections for the year were $2,310,268.40, and expenditures were $2,320,109.85. There was $108,511.61 in the general fund when the year opened and $108,000.16 when it closed.

The permanent common school fund at the beginning of the year was $274,773.24. $891,774.49 was collected, $1,374,106.25 expended, and $292,441.48 remained in the fund when the year ended. The motor vehicle registration fund is growing. There was a balance of $29,415.51 when the year opened; collections totaled $24,834.77, expenditures, $224,025.98, and there remained $50,274.60 on hand June 30.

The terminal elevator fund at the close of the year amounted to $104,875.59, collections for this fund, 1-8 of one mill on all assessable property amounting to $15,373.22, while there was $59,489.17 on hand at the beginning of the year. No further additions will be made to this fund, the law creating it having been repealed by the last legislature. The state highway fund at the close of the year amounted to $70,355.60, which represented collections made from the registration of motor vehicles after the taking effect of the state highway law passed by the last legislature. The revenues of the twin plant for the year were $307,887.63, and expenditures were $45,022.06. Of this the $56,860.60 on hand at the beginning of the year, but $19,675.26 was left at its close.

The income from state taxes during the year was $1,413,319.47, and the next largest item of general fund income was $212,970.39 in fees from the office of the insurance commissioner.

ASTOUNDING REVELATIONS OF TEUTONIC SPY

date of President Wilson's date to congress, Jan. 22, reciting his appeal to the warring nations to enter into peace negotiations. At the same time, the president was addressing congress apparently, Count von Bernstorff was appealing to his government for funds with which to influence congress to action.

Not the First Time.
It was not the first time apparently that Count von Bernstorff had sought to influence congressional action, this being frequently proclaimed by his reference to "former occasions." Up to the time of Captain Boy Ed and Von Papen's recall, Von Bernstorff apparently, for diplomatic reasons, had sought to remain clear personally of connection with the great volume of pro-German activities conducted here by his attaches. From disclosures concerning Boy Ed and Von Papen's manifold activities here, officially apparently the officials of Germany had left the conduct of German propaganda in the hands of his subordinates with only casual supervision of their activities, if any.

Pro-German Agents.
Intimations have been more or less frequent, however, at trials and other proceedings instituted against pro-German agents in this country that Von Bernstorff had at least a general knowledge of the work which they were conducting.

Officials recalled today, however, Count von Bernstorff's action in connection with the seizure in April, 1916, of important papers and documents at the office of Wolff von Igell in New York. Von Igell's office, an advertising agency, was raided by department of justice agents, who after a struggle, subdued Von Igell and seized the papers in his possession. Von Bernstorff at once protested and requested their return. Copies were made of the papers, and Von Bernstorff was told if he would declare them to be the papers of the embassy, the originals would be returned. They return in that state to this day. Count von Bernstorff apparently was unwilling to take responsibility for the evidence of German intrigue.

Using the Pacifists.
Some officials apparently believe, however, that the method of influencing was the using of pacifists to rake the chestnuts out of the fire rather than to any direct subordination of congressmen.

At least, one of the most active organizations flooded Washington with telegrams prior to the war and during the days immediately following the break in relations. Telegraph wires were congested with hundreds of thousands of telegrams, and mail pouches were filled with literature calculated to influence congressmen to vote against any measure looking to war with Germany. How important a role the German diplomats played behind the scenes in that instance is not definitely known, but it always has been assumed that Teutonic agents were largely responsible for the activities that so embarrassed the president and had the effect of support of the opposition that developed in congress.

Secretary Lansing adheres to his determination not to discuss this latest disclosure and refused to reveal the manner in which the message to Berlin came into the hands of the government.
